Cited document 1 discloses technology which is similar to that of the invention of the subject application. Further, as prior analysis is performed, in the invention of the subject application, with respect to the input dynamic image data, such as finding the generated code amount by coding in the quantization width applied, emphasizing in the written opinion that prior analysis is not performed is contradictory to that disclosed in the description and the figures. (Of course, delay means which store the input dynamic image data and the analysis period are also necessary.)
